is also the largest manufacturer of SPV products in the developing countries and is ranked by independent observers of the international SPV scene as the 5th largest manufacturer of SPV products in the world. CEL has a fully integrated plant manufacturing solar cells, SPC modules panels and SPV systems, all based on wholly indigenous technology developed in-house and in collaboration with some Government R&D laboratories. The company manufactures and sells some 25 different type of SPV systems for rural, remote area and industrial applications. As of end March 1995, CEL had manufactured and sold around 50,000 such SPV systems, both at home and abroad.

(b) The Mission Statement of CEL is:

"To achieve excellence in the technology of manufacturing and marketing of renewable energy systems and selected electronic materials, components and systems".

Based on this Mission Statement, CEL has so far confined itself only to Solar Photovoltaic products in the area of non-conventional/renewable energy. However, it is keeping the whole area of non-conventional energy sources under continuing review to see if there are commerciallly viable opportunities for it to take up non-conventional energy products in areas other than SPV.
